

Tuesday 24th November 2009

Writing a Flashback with a Trigger

It was freezing out side, when every second Snow came blowing at his face. He shivered as he rood down Lizzie Lamb's Hill. It was as cold as ice ^{up} the Sledge. Then he spun round the gate. ✓

Try to start your sentences with either the weather or wind conditions.

As William gripped his fingers on to the smooth Sledge, his mind spun backwards. All of a sudden, he was on the back of Granddad's old bicycle. William was as warm as a fluffy ^{little} Polar Bear; when he snuggled up to Granddad's fluffy grey coat. ✓

// With the feedback, you have written a winter flashback with a trigger and a memory.